

I've been an active member in the Clarkston community for over 12 years, and an official resident in the Historic District for over 1 year, where I own and operate my IT businesses.

I am a natural-born problem solver and committed to engendering the health and vitality of small towns across America because I see them as the cornerstone of our country.

I believe that each Clarkston community member is vital to the whole organism that makes up the village proper. We will only thrive and prosper when we unite together as one with a unified vision for making Clarkston a place where individuals and professionals thrive, while maintaining the charm and appeal that our Historic District offers.
